IFMA21 – Reminder - Registration Early Bird Deadline 30th April 2017

IFMA22 – 22nd IFMA Congress Announcement

Dear IFMA Newsletter Subscriber,

In this Newsletter – which is best viewed in HTML

IFMA21 - Registration Early Bird Deadline reminder – This coming Sunday 30th April 2017

The Early Bird Registration Rate ends this coming Sunday. The date will not be extended - so don't miss it. Bookings for the congress have progressed well, but there is still room for more before the remaining places are offered on a day-ticket basis to local attendees (starting after the deadline).

IFMA21 – Pre and Post Congress Tours

Both the Pre and Post Congress tours are now fully subscribed – anyone wishing to participate should contact Richard Cooksley to have their name put on the waiting list.

IFMA22 – 22nd IFMA Congress Announcement – venue & date.

It is with great pleasure that we can announce that the congress to follow Edinburgh will take place in Launceston, Tasmania from Sunday 3rd to Friday 8th March 2019.

Please make a note of these dates. The website for IFMA22 – www.ifma22.org - is now up and running and you can express your interest by subscribing to the mailing list* on the home page. We are at an early in the process of organising a congress – so much more information will be available in due course, and of course we will be keeping you up-to-date in our Newsletters.

The IFMA22 team will be in Edinburgh to give a presentation during the congress and will want to meet as many delegates as possible.

Tasmanian agriculture is highly diversified, has great ambition for the future, and offers much to anyone interested in growing agricultural production. Tasmania is a great place to visit and they are growing their tourism industry to meet the demand.

David Armstrong and his congress team have managed to secure support from the Tasmanian Government Department of Primary Industry, Parks, Water and Environment (DPIPWE) for the congress and you can see the Government Minister Jeremy Rockliff's recent Press Release about the congress coming to Tasmania here:

We are assured of a great welcome "down under" in 2019.

Article "Managerial ability in primary production ... further research and activity on INTUITION"

Peter Nuttall, Research Fellow at Lincoln University, New Zealand has asked me to pass on his short article on intuition in farm management which you can find here:
